

Urgent Care Association of America

Philip A. Giordano, MD

Dr. Philip Giordano is currently the Director of Research Operations for Orlando Health, a 1.5 billion dollar healthcare system in Central Florida. He is also the Vice Chairman of the Department of Emergency Medicine at the Orlando Regional Medical Center in Orlando, Florida.

Dr. Giordano graduated from the University Of Virginia School Of Medicine in 1993. He went on to residency training in emergency medicine at the Orlando Regional Medical Center where he was chief resident from 1995-1996. He subsequently completed a two year research fellowship and joined the teaching faculty in the emergency medicine residency program in Orlando. He currently holds faculty positions at the University of Florida School of Medicine, Florida State University School of Medicine, University of South Florida School of Medicine and the University Of Central Florida School Of Medicine.

Dr. Giordano's research interests include the emergency management of fractures and orthopedic injuries, the emergency treatment of infectious diseases with a special interest in complicated skin infections and mammalian bites. He is the author of numerous papers and publications and has participated in many funded and granted projects related to these research topics. He has given lectures both nationally and internationally and has served as an expert on numerous panels and advisory boards.

Contact Information:

Philip Giordano, MD
Department of Emergency Medicine
Orlando Regional Hospital
321-841-3679
philip.giordano@orlandohealth.com